

Statement by Deputy Prime-Minister – Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Kazakhstan H.E. Mr. Murat Nurtleu
during Summit of the Future
Plenary Session #3
(23 September 2024, New York)

Mr. President,
Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen,

Kazakhstan is here today to join efforts with all UN member states and its institutions in insuring a brighter future both for our Planet and entire humanity.

Fully supporting the UN Secretary-General's endeavors to build a prosperous community of nations, my country commits itself to all three landmark documents of the Summit of the Future.

It is obvious that effective multilateralism enshrined in the Pact for the Future should be central in overcoming today's unprecedented existential challenges and threats.

Therefore, the current Summit is a timely call for a comprehensive reform of the UN system.

As stated by President Tokayev of Kazakhstan at this rostrum last year, the voices of Middle Powers and the developing world need to be amplified and heard clearly in the Security Council.

In times of geopolitical turmoil and economic uncertainty the world needs diplomacy and dialogue.

Mr. President,

Climate change is a global issue that cannot be addressed without multilateral engagement.

Central Asia stands on the frontline of global warming and will face an above-average 2.5 degree increase in temperatures by 2050.

To effectively tackle problems like melting glaciers, water scarcity, biodiversity loss and desertification, my country will host the first Regional Climate Summit under the UN auspices in 2026.

In addition, we propose to open the UN Regional Centre on Sustainable Development for Central Asia and Afghanistan to further enhance coordination on SDG deliverables.

I am confident that with the right support, this idea will serve as a future role model for UN development mechanisms.

Furthermore, Kazakhstan calls on all technologically advanced countries to eliminate barriers and commit necessary resources to assist climate-vulnerable communities.

Excellencies,

Digital transformation is a driving power of our progress towards the 2030 Agenda.

Within the next decade about 70% of all global goods and services will be produced using digital platforms.

The potential benefits of these changes depend on equitable access to cutting edge technologies in all countries.

At the same time, emerging digital solutions, including Artificial Intelligence, should not pose a risk to international security.

To this end, being a regional IT powerhouse, Kazakhstan has initiated the establishment of the UN-ESCAP Digital Solutions Centre to bridge the digital divide in the Asia-Pacific region.

Mr. President,

Speaking about the future, we must not forget lessons of the past.

Nuclear power, once invented for the good of humankind, is now the deadliest weapon of mass destruction.

Kazakhstan, which directly suffered from nuclear tests, calls on the international community to join our efforts in preventing any nuclear catastrophe in the future.

We also encourage all states to set aside their political differences and focus on a new global order based on mutual trust and respect.

Creating regional nuclear-weapon-free zones, especially in the Middle East, would contribute to the noble end – achieving the world free of the nuclear threats.

Ladies and gentlemen,

Upholding human rights is not merely an aspiration, but a one of the key components of sustainable development.

It is also the best antidote against inequalities that are often at the root of instability and conflicts.

In accordance with our objective to build a Just and Fair Kazakhstan, my country has abolished the death penalty, instituted a zero-tolerance policy against torture, and strengthened its national preventive mechanism.

Recently we adopted national legislation to combat domestic violence.

President Tokayev's large-scale reform agenda is firmly based on the principles of rule of law, good governance as well as inclusive social and economic development.

In essence, respect for fundamental human rights is the highest priority for us.

Excellencies,

We have a unique chance to advance our shared vision for equitable, stable and peaceful future for generations to come.

There is no alternative to the world based on the UN Charter and principles of international law.

Let us work together in the spirit of open, constructive engagement and true multilateralism.

I thank you.
